Popular education and Organizing – Building a Movement the Best Way We Know How

Highlander Social Change Workshop

December 5-7, 2008

New Market, Tennessee

Highlander's vision includes building a movement for justice that reaches across the South and Appalachia and connects to the world. And it starts with people working together. So we want to explore some key things- what helps people come together? What helps people move together? How can this kind of activity grow and change the world?

Goals:

- To bring together a diverse group of activists and others working for social change to talk about popular education and organizing
- To hear from organizers/activists/popular educators about what are ways to help build broader movements for social change
- To enable participants and Highlander staff to learn from each other about ideas and strategies for social change, both historically and current!
- To enable participants to relax, reflect, discuss, and have fun at Highlander

Who is this for:

English and Spanish-speaking people and groups who would like to learn and share their experiences doing organizing and popular education

In addition, there will be –

- Free time to relax, reflect, watch videos, talk with Highlander staff and other participants, use the resource center, enjoy the outdoors
- Simultaneous English/Spanish interpretation if needed

The cost for this 2 ½ day workshop is $350, which includes room and board. We will have limited scholarships available for people with limited means who are actively engaged in social change. Childcare can be provided.

Scholarship Request

(Please attach with your application and send in by October 30 in order to be considered for scholarship– thanks!)

Name(s):

Organization:

Our scholarships are limited and so we are prioritizing low-income people who are engaged in popular education and/or organizing. Please describe yourself in light of this – who are you working or volunteering with and what is this group working to do? If you want to send a newsletter or information from this effort to explain it, that is fine!

Please let us know how much you can afford to pay.
